The Chicago is still on the stocks, but the Boston has been launched and is tied up at one of the piers. It is thought that the Chicago can be launched in about ten days after work on her is resumed, and that it will take about three months to complete the Boston up to the point named in Roach's contract, at a cost of about $25,000. The Chicago will require several months longer than the Boston and several times as much money.

SECOND CONTROLLER MAYNARD in his annual report says that the transaction of public justice promoted if the government would impose a reasonable limitation of time within which all claims, either in favor of or against the government, should be presented through the accounting officers.

His Staff.-General Sheridan issued a general order yesterday afternoon appointing Captain S. E. Blunt, of the ordnance department, and Capt. S. C. Kellogg, 5th cavalry, to the vacancies on his staff. Capt. Kellogg, who was an aide-de-camp to Gen. Thomas during the war, has lately returned from Europe, where he attended this year's "autumn maneuvers" of the French army, and is now serving with his troops at Fort Supply, Indian Territory. Captain Blunt has been serving for more than a year as inspector of rifle practice at headquarters of the army, the duties of which position he will continue to discharge in addition to those of aide-de-camp. He is the author of the "Manuel of Rifle Firing," adopted last year for use in the army. Capts. Kellogg and Blunt are used to and favorably known both in and out of

I was to report to Gen. Emory, which I did every morning, sometimes both of It is a large shell composed of diamonds, with us, Milfer and myself, going up together. There was a time, however, when we did not report every morning, for sometimes I had to go out of the city. Living as I did near the marine garrison and having been in the navy off and on since boyhood, nothing was thought of my going in the barracks daily when in the city. One part of my duty was to watch the barracks, which I did every morning especially. I see that Major Richards had Milstead looking after the marines, and I reckon it was during the day and evening. My tour there was early in the dicate that any movement was contemplated but you know that with marines as with sail ors, they must be always ready." hunted up a regiment of cavalry which was being organized near Frederick?" "Yes, I pricked that bubble." answered Mr. Coomes with a laugh. "News was received here, I believe, by some railroad conductor that the people in the neighborhood of Frederick were organizing, and I was sent to ascertain if the report was true. I took a train and went to

Harper's Ferry, arriving there in the evening, carefully looking about the Monocacy for any igns, but I found none either there or at the Ferry. At the latter place everything was dead. The next morning I went to Frederick. dead. The next morning I went to Frederica. Here I met a party who knew me, and he was very anxious to know what I was after, and I told him I was tracking some horse thieves. He took me in tow and showed me about the place, for he thought that that was my first visit, and during our rambles he said that a soldier had been in town and while drinking had said something about a regiment of cavalry taking the town. Taking a note of this I made other inquiries, and found that a regular cavalryman had, while on a drunk, intimated something about a regiment of cavalry, and like the old story of the three black crows, the story had grown until the railroad man heard that a full regiment had been raised and equipped to follow the fortunes of Andy Johnson. I left that night or next morning, and the next day reported to Gen. Emory that I had seen no sign of a soldier and that of the regiment I had expected to hear of I had learned of out one man, and he was drunk. Gen. Emory aughed heartily when I made my report, but did not seem surprised that the report had dwindled down to nothing. From time to time continued to report to Gen. Emory, but was anable to inform him of any more warlike iemonstrations in Maryland.' EX-DETECTIVE MILLER'S RECOLLECTIONS. "Yes, said Mr. George O. Miller, who was for. merly a detective, "I was on duty at Gen. Grant's headquarters during the impeachment trial of 'Andy' Johnson. I was detailed by Major Richards at the personal request of Gen. Grant, and during that time I reported to Gen. Grant and to Gen. Emory, who had command of this division or department."

"Well, what did you learn," asked THE STAR I can't recall much now, but in general terms I will say that most of the rumors when investi-gated proved to be all bosh. I remember now," ontinued Mr. Miller, "that a report reached Gen. Grant that there was a lot of rough-looking men in South Washington supposed to be regular pirates, who were to do some desperate deed in the interest of 'Andy' Johnson. The general had received this information in a letter from a prominent local politician and citizen of South Washington, who signed his down the river, where they were to work for the season. Both Gen. Grant and Gen. Emory regarded this affair as a huge joke. The next, regarded this affair as a huge joke. The next, if I remember rightly, was a report that secret organizations were in existence, the prime object of which was to support 'Andy' Johnson, and I was directed to look after them. With the assistance of some detailed men I soon learned that the so-called secret organizations were two democratic clubs, whose object was the promulgation of democratic principles. I reported this to Gen. Grant and he said that they had a perfect right to spread their principles. He, however, directed me to run ail rumors down and spare no time or expense in doing it, and once he said on my reporting to him, I don't propose to be stampeded and don't care how much the investigations cost. Whenever you hear anything bearing on the subject you are on, make a thorough investigation and let me know the result.' This remark, I remember, he made after I had some officers detailed to Maryland, who came back with a report that nothing was going on. Mr. McElfresh made the report on militia in Prince George's county, and I see that he has made a statement in The Star. The militia he saw was preparing to go into camp at Annapolis Junction or somewhere in that neighborhood." regarded this anair as a huge joke. The next, if I remember rightly, was a report that secret organizations were in existence, the prime object of which was to support 'Andy' Johnson, and I was directed to look after them. With the assistance of some detailed men I soon learned that the so-called secret organizations was preparing to go into camp at Annapolis Junction or somewhere in that neighborhood." "You, of course," said the reporter, "were aware which way Gen. Grant's sympathies

"Yes," answered Mr. Miller. "He was in har-mony with Congress and Stanton and took but little stock in Gen. Lorenzo Thomas. He took is little stock in Gen. Lorenzo Thomas. He took it that in Congress the people were represented."

"How about Gen. Emory?" asked the reporter adding: "It was said that he was placed in command of the department because he was a Virginian by birth."

"Yes," answered Mr. Miller, "I know it was thought at the time that he sympathized with the President, but he was a loyal man and would have taken his orders from Gen. Grant, who was his immediate superior officer; at least it is my opinion that he would."

JUDGE VINCENT'S CASE.—As stated in THE STAR some days ago the effort of ex-Judge Vincent, of New Mexico, to have the order of his removal reconsidered, was not listened to by the Attorney General, nor did an appeal to the President result any more favorably for the applicant. Judge Vincent and his friends were advised that the case was finally closed; that his successor had been appointed and had qualified, and that there was, practically, no appeal. It is understood that a letter containing Judge Vincent's defense has been addressed to the authorities with the idea of its reaching the public. But there is no intention at the Department of Justice of listening to anything in the nature of an appeal. There the whole case is regarded as finally settled. cent, of New Mexico, to have the order of his

It will be pleasant information to that part of Washington society which does not exist for frivolity alone that measures are being perfected to have Mr. E. C. Messer deliver a lecture on art previous to his departure for Europe the latter part of this month. It came to the knowledge of some of his friends that such a discourse had been prepared by him some time ago, and a few of them having had an opportunity to read it, it was voted that it was of such a character that the public or at least that such a character that the public, or at least that case the whole affair ultimately proves a portion of it interested in esthetic and intellectual improvement, ought to have the benefit of it. Accordingly the steps above indicated have been taken, and we are able to say that the lecture will be given in the course of the next two weeks,—probably on or about the 18th inst. The Art Students' League has taken the matter in hand, and it may be said, in fact that the affair will take place under the auspices of that organization, which will spare no effort to make it a complete success in every respect. Than Mr. Messer there is no one in Washington more competent to treat the theme he has chosen in an intelligent and entertaining way, and those who purpose hearing him have a most delightful intellectual treat in store Mr. and Mrs. S. V. Niles have given much time and thought this summer and fall to the improvement of their residence on I street, and when they are once well rid of the workmen it will be a notably elegant and attractive establishment. The relations of Mr. and Mrs. Niles with some of the members of the present administration are such that they are likely to become somewhat prominent in social affairs the coming season, and it was doubtless with this probability in view as well as with refer-ence to the needs and inclinations of themselves that the changes and adornments of the house have been made. They expect to get comfortably settled again at an early day. Passengers by a recent steamer from Europe profess to have found great relief in sea sickness by the use of a remedy prescribed by one of their fellows, Mr. Henry F. Gillig, of the well known and much esteemed American Exchange in Europe. As it would not seem to be a wholly disagreeable compound, it is given here for the benefit of any readers of The STAR who may be intending voyagers during the inclement winter season. Its ingredients are: A quart of champagne, three-fourths of a wine glass of the finest cognac, a small wine glass full of prunelle, a French cordial; one-half a wine glass of anisette or kirsch, a whole nutmeg ground, the juice of one-half a lemon, three or four oranges cut up into small pieces. The administration was not guilty of any improper interference, but it became pretty well known that Cleveland was anxious that the party should win, and the effect was wonderful. Manning and Tilden know how to bring the vote out, and all during the last week their hand could clearly be seen. Everybody knew that it was settled; the thing was all right."

The Czar's Anger With Prince Alexander-A Solution of the Complications No Nearer Than Ever. Special Cable Dispatch to THE EVENING STAR.

LONDON, Nov. 7.- The event of the week in foreign affairs is the public humiliation of Prince Alexander by the czar. This, bad enough in itself, is made much worse by the wording of the Russian official order. Instead of the usual word meaning he had dispensed with his services the czar employed one having a disgraceful meaning, "struck off." Such action is highly significant. It shows, first, that Russia has dissension. Prince Alexander holds similar stantine to wilfully ground the vessel. commands in the German and Austrian armies, but these countries have taken no steps against him, which means much. The proposal that been more rapid and marked than in that immediate vicinity, the truth is that the region including Thomas and Scott circles is physically the very choicest part of the city, and those who are looking for the finest natural sites for permanent homes in Washington are turning their attention in that direction. got the second prize. ARMY COURTS-MARTIAL. Recommendations of the Acting Judge-

The annual report of the acting judge advocate general of the army for the year ending September 30th, 1885, states that the number year was 2,331, an increase of 51 over the preceding year; number of convictions for desertion, 674; number of trials by garrison and regimental courts-martial, 11,761, an increase over last year of 778, making a total increase of trials of 829. The total number of trials by general garrison and regimental courts-martial alone constitute the military penal code, which would thus be made to stand by itself and would become easier to grasp. He holds that the duties of a judge advocate as the prosecutor for the government and the recorder and legal adviser of the court are apt to be irreconcilable, and be recommends the adoption of the Eng-lish code—that no person acting as prosecutor progress. The temperature north of Platte is 30 or being a witness for the prosecution shall also act as judge advocate. He says there is no authority of law for an army officer other than the judge advocate to take deposition evidence, as is often done, and recommends that com-missioned officers be vested with the power to administer oaths. He calls attention to the lack of jurisdiction over military convicts who have been dis-charged from the service and are confined 'elsewhere than at the Fort Leavenworth military Register places the majority of Larrabee (rep.), for governor, at 7,664.
